

Master of Public Administration

Program Student Learning Outcomes

Students graduating with a Master of Public Administration will be able to demonstrate:

- Leadership and decision making
- Communications
- Awareness of the values and tradeoffs in public service, including sustainability, citizen engagement, democratic values and transparency
- Role of financial, human, information, technology and other resources
- Knowledge of the policy process, including assessment
- Problem-solving, including the use of evidence
- Information processing and technology for effective administration